What a sadness ...

We had hoped, some more than others, that the worst was over; someone was believing that the summer season would have killed the remaining of that unclean animal that had caused so much pain. More than a certainty it was a hope, because couldn't stand it anymore to stay like prisoners and keeping that bloody piece of cloth on the face. Somebody was attempting to exorcise it, using of various colors or putting sentences or logos, and some ladies were trying to match them with their clothes; but as a matter of fact, you can do whatever you like but cannot change the reality. The reality moves inside each one of us different feelings: fear, rebellion, anger: but what is really predominant is sadness.

Can you remember the imagine of the Pope praying under the rain in a deserted S. Peter's square ? Well, for sure it hasn't the same pathos, but to see a little old woman walking down in Pignola with a cane and dressing that blood mask is something that generates big sadness.

And now, cherry on the cake, Christmas is coming.

For believers, the most important feast, bearer of joy; this year it's quite a provocation: no midnight mass, an intimate dinner and –above all- a silence as we have never heard

Who knows ? maybe that night was exactly like that...

DB

Jan. 17 in a minor key

Who was not born in Pignola cannot surely understand the feeling of inhabitants during the anniversary of St. Anthony in this 2021, and could consider strange their sense of having been cheated of something that represents one of the most traditional events of town's life.

An events that culminates with the long awaited race of mules, monkeys and horses, but is also made of other elements, like the collection ad preparation of the firewood for the bonfire in the night, and the blessing of animals. So, to see a small fire in a brazier and the Saint just standing at the church door has been really sad for the inhabitants.

A "foreign" person could say that currently there are bigger problems to worry about; and maybe true; but who will tell such words to people that until now saw his life marked by events like the Jan. 17 ?

PARTICIPATION and SHARING

To participate and contribute to the socio-cultural growth of our community is a right/duty of every citizen and local institution. That's what the Catholic Action of Pignola is trying to do, giving its attention to every action going in that direction.

This is also valid for the 600th anniversary of the Pignola's annexation into the "Casa santa dell'Annunziata di Napoli".

We started such initiative, involving local associations; and once everybody was convinced to go ahead, we passed the baton to the Pro Loco President, Mrs Loredana Albano, who gladly accepted to handle management and organizational aspects, being better positioned than Catholic Action to pursue the project.

This doesn't mean we're out of the flow: we will be always alongside the Pro Loco, giving our maximum contribution to bring to the light this historical heritage.

Little considerations on current times

Looking at the current period, that in effect is going on since one year, it is absolutely correct the Cicerone's sentence "Mala tempora currunt..." ("Bad times are upon"; as well, it is understandable that normally the second part of his sentence is omitted, because it states (as bird of ill omen) "sed peiora parantur", meaning "...but the worst has yet to come".

Well, let's hope it doesn't come true because it's bad enough, so we don't need anything else.

So, trying to forget for a moment the big ones, there are "little" problems that are anyway boring us. One of them is the simple, habitual act to shake hands meeting somebody.

Maybe that many people do not know from what such a gesture comes.

Once, the sword was on the left side and it was drawn with the right hand to pierce the enemy; thus, the offer of an empty right hand was indicating the absence of bad intentions.

Well, now it's quite the same: we're not shaking hands just to avoid to give a friend the present of a bunch of viruses...

That's why we had to become quite "Japanese"! You see, although with the utmost respect for that thousands-year old civilization, to replace a warm handshake with a little bow leaves us unsatisfied; and let's avoid to mention the choreographed elbows contact that makes people like quadrille's dancers...

Back to church staff, yes, it's true that baptism or wedding must be an "internal event", not overshadowed by external factors; but the tradition of reuniting with relatives and friends in a cheerful and noisy banquet after the religious ceremony cannot disappear in the short term.

Therefore now these event are being postponed, awaiting for better times, when it will be possible to stay all together without strange gags hanging on ears to avoid spitting each other.

So, let's hope that the near future will be far better, allowing to fulfill with many of these events the "Parish events" page of our internet site, that is desolately empty since too much time.

June 13 – First confession (Day of Pardon)

Despite the difficulties we had to face, quarantines, pauses, fears, we finally have been able to celebrate the First Confession.

We are really proud of our children: they attended the lessons with perseverance and attention and, in spite of face masks and physical distance, we saw in their eyes the wish to learn and the amazement discovering this sacrament they were going to receive consciously for the first time. It has been truly a participatory and moving celebration, and that's valid also for us: mentoring them in their journey of faith is always a strong emotion for us.

Thanks kids: every Saturday you gave us a cheerful hour.

Thanks to their parents for trusting in us during a so delicate period.

Let's hope that next year everything will return to normality.

June 25 - Confirmation

Also this course came to end: today another group of teenager receives the sacrament of Confirmation.

The ritual begins again with their processional access to the Church with the presence of the Bishop and, obviously, of their moved relatives and parents.

This time the emotion is really great, because these twelve kids are reaching the conclusion of their preparation path after the suspension of Catechism activities caused by Coronavirus.

During this suspension period, technology allowed us to keep alive the contact with them, using also the material made available by Diocesan Office (educational cards, videos, prayers within the family)

Luckily, the current status allowed to have latest meetings physically attended, and we saw the result because the candidates showed their desire to conclude the path receiving this Sacrament, considered as very important and binding for the Christian life.

The celebration was presided by Mons. Ligorio, and our parish priest, speaking to the 12 kids compared them to the 12 Apostles that, despite the fear, received with dedication and love the Holy Spirit becoming instrument of evangelization.

We, as catechists, want to thank these boys and girls, because they've allowed us to relive the importance of this sacrament, and at the same time we nostalgically recalled our first year of catechism, when we began this great and mysterious task.

FIRST COMMUNION

So, in spite of everything, also this year we are at the Main Church to celebrate the First Communion.

Yes, “in spite of everything” : we cannot ignore how this pandemic continues -since quite two years- to severely impact various aspects of our life; and one of them has been the catechism, that couldn't be as in the past. It was really hard for children but mainly for catechists, that had to work surrounded by difficulties; so we have to give them a great thank you. As well, we must consider how disappointed are today all the relatives that cannot be here because of the limitations.

Anyway, let's try to forget the situation for a moment, trying to enjoy the ceremony that begins with the children's entering procession: with them, enters also a blast of new life, making the very old building bright and less austere. In their little white habits, they proceed quite clumsy, being afraid to make something wrong “just today”...

Reaching the altar, each one puts his flower into a vase, were they grow becoming a gorgeous bouquet, a jubilation of white. During the mass, they answer and sing, although that hateful piece of cloth makes muffled their crystal-clear voices.

With his homily the parish priest, using very simple terms, explained the real meaning of the word communion, and therefore the importance of such a day; and looking at their faces, they were really “drinking” his words: at least for a while, they'll remember that we all should feel as a unique, big family.

It must be mentioned how the various steps of the ceremony were underlined by sound of the organ and the voices of the choir; often we underestimate their importance, but try to imagine the same celebration without them...

Somebody could define some moments as purely choreographic and unnecessary; and it may be true. But don't forget this is a “First communion feast”: what kind of feast would it be without a few choreography, also thinking it is addressed to children ?

Now the highest point: one by one, in perfect order, they go to receive the consecrated host in their open hands, tasting -as don Antonio said- a “new and different flavor”.

Blessed is he who, receiving in the future the Eucharist, will keep intact the emotions of this moment.

It seems appropriate to end bringing the text of the prayer read by Andrea on behalf of his companions:

*Mary, Mother of Jesus and our Mother,
we, your children, consecrate ourselves to you.
We entrust to you so that we may live a holy life:
to be your little servants, so that you can rely on us to help you in bringing to completion
the loving plan that the Father has on each one of us.
Mother of Jesus and our Mother, give us the grace to be always faithful to the Church and to the Holy Father and, together with you, to love and to worship the Lord Jesus
Amen*

First Communion - August the 1st

We like to start with a great “Thanks” !

Thanks God for this day full of emotions. Thanks for guiding us on this journey of preparation to the First Communion of 33 children who completed, with great effort, the route begun three years ago.

It was not easy because of the pandemic, but we had to do it ! That’s why we had to prolong the catechism up to the end of July, with two meetings per week, to teach children to know, love and serve the Lord also under the aspect of the broken bread and the blood spilled becoming the body and blood of our Savior during the mass celebration.

Before this day, on Friday 30th July we had the spiritual retreat; we all met at the Main Church and don Antonio proposed some items of reflection, followed by the confession of each one; and you could read the emotion on their faces.

Finally the long awaited day: on Sunday the 1st we welcomed the children in the Rectory and then we all went singing toward the church, where their parents were waiting to take pictures of them, dressed in white tunics and with faces lighted up with an inner light.

The best memory we will keep in our eyes and hearts is the sight of children with folded hands and the gaze fixed to the Eucharist. We really hope they understood how great the love of Father is and that they will become his friends only if they will be able to love as He did, in order to continue their journey of faith more consciously.

The Catholic Action and The Accession/Membership day

As in the past, also this year the C.A. of Pignola has celebrated the accession/membership day on December the 8th, feast of the Immaculate Conception. In this day it's an established C.A. practice to give a fraternal greeting to all practicing catholic in Pignola, a community always enthusiastically participating to every religious, cultural, and social initiative because they strongly believe in those values and ideals that are focusing on the human person.

Our association is alive, and doesn't want to surrender to the difficulties that are hampering our actions since a long time because of the COVID. We're convinced that C.A. is like a community school, the main road to reach the goals entrusted by the Church to lay people that, acting in this way, is able to learn how to become God's people.

Therefore each one of us has been always present near our local Church to cooperate in helping those social categories asking for help like poor, elder, sick, confused young, up to environmental protection and climate. Let me repeat that C.A. is a dynamic and cohesive association, where every member feels involved to go ahead, taking possession of the basic values contained in the Church's social doctrine and well in evidence in the "All brothers" encyclical from Pope Francis.

That's why we appeal to everybody's sensibility, asking to join us: we have to grow, to go further together, men and women of goodwill, to serve humanity and make the world a better place.

The C.A. president
